An analysis of the information for children about the dwelling on the children's books — A study on the culture of living for children —

Spatial organization of shophouses in market towns in the central plains of Thailand — The case of Talat Khlong Suan —

Case study on the house adaptation for persons with intellectual disability at home — When it focuses on the mitigation of the burden of excretion care —

The relation between the ‘stage of elderly’ and the remodeling of housing complex that varies according to the age of the housing complex — A study on the living environment of the elderly from the viewpoint of the stage of their ages — part 2 —

Interrelationship between façade and open area of housing in the biljmermeer — A study on the urban renewal of Dutch housing development in the early post-war — part 2 —

An experimental study on students' psychological impression and dimensional perception of ceiling height in classrooms of the junior high school —

The pupils' sitting configuration in relation to learning activities on the floor in elementary schools —

A study on the walks and stops of the visually impaired in model courses —

A study on pedestrian walk flow model with pedestrian's optimum velocity behavior — The analysis based on track-follow phase transition patterns in crowd's small group formations —

Analysis method of spatial configurations of means of human movement time in architectural space — Evaluation of spatial relationships by network indices — part 1 —

A research on conversion from old folk house (in case of Ibaraki, Tochigi, Gunma, Chiba, Saitama, Tokyo, Kanagawa, Niigata, Nagano and Yamanashi prefecture) — A study on public reuse of old folk house for regional resources —

Community management area of aging society in mountainous region — Community planning for aging society — part 2 —

The transformations of the piazza mattei fountain from 1584 to 1658 —

Urban design of housing blocks with street wall and courtyard — Case study on making and use of design guidelines in a residential development project —

Scene-recognition of night city view from skyscrapers — The central area of tokyo as a case study —

The progress of community funds’ system by cities and wards in japan, and the evaluation of its system for building cooperative society —

A practice of design coordination towards urban architecture — A case study on makuhi baytown —

Generalization of a stochastic urban model — A case of multiple land-use types —

Framework of relation with the university and the city according to campus master plan — In the case of UC Davis and city of Davis —

A study on the cooperation of a school and a community seen from the educational side in a high school — Consciousness of a school to an area and how to treat with the area in education —

Comparative study on building construction system and construction supervision between japan and south korea —

Factors on qc circles in the chinese construction industry — A comparative study on construction project management between china and japan — part 3 —

A trial about restriction on the use of beam over standard long with town houses in kyoto —

On the "kuzo ryochohun" and "ryochohun-zu" — A study of the "inkyu-oyobi-shitei-zu" drawn and written by kozen uramatsu — part 4 —

The characteristics of the suburb in modern times and community space arrangement — The case of sumiyoshi-mura —

The characteristics of bothian block-pillar churches — A study of finnish wooden churches in the 17th and 18th centuries — part 1 —

The base of the giant order and the parapet of the window in bernini’s palace façade —

Analysis on the geometry of special composition and visual structure based on the design process — A consideration on the proportion of museum of modern art, kanakura designed by junzo saitakura (part 2) —