CONSTITUTIONAL LAW REVIEW

No. 8

CONTENTS

Articles
A Reexamination of D. Robinson's Thesis on the Origins of the Constitution of Japan
.............................................................................................................................................Yoshiyuki Ohya..................................................................................1
The Development of Belgian Constitutional Practice: the Head of State Between Law and Custom
...........................................................................................................Dimitri Vanoverbeke...................................................................27
Practice and Protection of Human Rights of the irregular employee; a freelance part-time worker called "Freeter, Free arbiter" in Japanese ..................................................Satoshi Yoshikawa..........................55
On Dead Vote and Electoral System .....................................................Yukio Kobayashi.................................................................79
Japanese Constitution and Foreigner Suffrage within Municipal Government
   -from the point of view of those not in favor of suffrage-
.............................................................................................................Katsuya Anbo........................................97

Case Studies
On the Nibutani Dam Decision of 1997
   -Summary and Comments- ..................................................Hitoshi Kikkawa.................................................119

Documents
On the Ordinary Studies by the Association Members..............................135

Published by
KANSAI KENPOU KENKYUKAI
THE KANSAI
CONSTITUTIONAL LAW ASSOCIATION
KYOTO, JAPAN
2002
ISBN4-915943-25-3-C0032-P3000E