Foreword

As the Conference Chair, I am pleased with holding the Second International Biophilia Rehabilitation Conference and welcome you to Windsor for it.

Biophilia Rehabilitation Academy is a Japanese Non-Profit Organization for the diffusion and study of Biophilia Rehabilitation that consists of the Takizawa program for rehabilitation, Motivative exercise and home care.

I had planned this Conference by the personal relations with the City of Windsor as a sister city of my hometown and Dr, Charles James.

Various social problems in aged society are global issues in these days. Aging proceeds globally in the world while Japan is expected to become a super-aged society in an unprecedented short term. An increase in the elderly population including the disabled one demands the expansion of the social security-related expenditure, which confers an unbearable burden to the following generation. These Aging Crises would raise the collapse of the social system.

In order to establish the sustainable aged society and to get over subjects, we conjugated the related research fields including medical science, engineering, and social science integrate the various aspects of complex aged society.

We will announce our most advanced research at this international conference. The general presentations are introduced to all over the world through J-STAGE (Japanese National Scientific Database).

These presentations, I believe, are useful for the life improvement of everyone. The International Conference of last year was a joint holding with the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands Governor's Council on Developmental Disabilities in that proof.

Holding the conference is realized in preparation by the effort of every one of the scientific committee and the help of the City Windsor.

I expressed gratitude with paying respect to the City of Windsor and its related people, especially Mr. Paul Louviere and Mr. Michael G. Chantler, and all of you who has done this preparation.

I hope that as many people as possible gather and join in the conference from all over the world.

Enjoy the Conference, and return home to realize your dreams.
