Contents

What’s New from Juntendo University, Tokyo

Short Report of the 2nd Symposium and the 3rd Workshop on Intractable Itch in Juntendo University

Mitsutoshi Tominaga, et al. 442

Special Reviews: Farewell Lectures of Retiring Professors

Pre- and Postgraduate Medical Education at Juntendo University and Ultrasonography Use in Respiratory Diseases

Takashi Dambara 446

Clinic-Based Lung Cancer Screening in Urayasu

Shigeru Tominaga 455

Plasmapheresis and Juntendo Tokyo Koto Geriatric Medical Center

Hiroshi Tsuda 460

Original Articles

Postoperative Adjuvant Chemotherapy Improves Survival in Stage II Colon Cancer?

A Propensity Score Matching Analysis

Kiichi Sugimoto, et al. 463

Principle Component Analysis of Health-Related Quality of Life Measures for Prostate Cancer

Norie Kawahara, et al. 472

Juntendo Forum Perspective

Nurses’ Training and Medical Care Management at Juntendo University Hospital: Perspective of a South Korean Nurse Team Leader

Jung Hee Park 479

Abstracts

Abstracts for 2015th Annual Poster Presentation (Research Institute for Diseases of Old Age) 483

Publication List

Publications from Juntendo University Graduate School of Medicine, 2014 [4/6] 516

Instructions to Authors 539

Editor’s Note 544

The Juntendo Medical Society

From the illustrator: I visited “Claude Monet’s Garden” in Giverny in a suburb of Paris six years ago. The plants in the garden looked as if they had grown untouched by human hands, and I felt it’s so comfortable place beyond description. When I hold a pen, I can clearly remember the atmosphere at that time (Akiko Miyamichi).