What’s New from Juntendo University, Tokyo

Problem-Based Learning to Encourage Active Learning and Teamwork Among First Year Medical Students

- Student Reports -

- Introduction .............................................................. Robert F. Whittier, Machiko Hatsuda .......................... 96
- What Words Push Your Motivation Switch?: Making You a Great Motivator (Course name: The Power of Words) .................................................. Mai Tamura, et al. .................................................. 98
- Which Should Be Dominant in Japan, the TOEFL iBT or the IELTS? (Course name: What Does a Test Measure?) ........................................................................ Osei Abe, et al. .................................................. 101
- How Does Music Influence Athletes’ Motivation? (Course name: Motivation, Where Does It Come from?) ................................................................. Erika Ochiai, et al. .................................................. 105

Original Articles

Predictive Ability for Reflux Esophagitis by Gastroesophageal Barium Reflux and Angle of His Seen in Upper Gastrointestinal Series .................................................. Takayuki Hashimoto, et al. .................................. 108

Psychological Transition Characteristics of Patients Diagnosed with Asbestos-Related Mesothelioma .................................................................................. Yoshimi Kasai, Okio Hino .................................. 114

Reports

Environmental Pollution and Related Diseases Reported in Japan: From an Era of "Risk Evaluation" to an Era of "Risk Management" ........................................ Okio Hino, et al. .................................................. 122

Mini Reviews

Federal Headship of Carcinogenesis – Hereditary & Environmental Cancer – .................................................. Okio Hino .................................................. 128

Juntendo Research Profiles

Department of Next Generation Hematology Laboratory Medicine ........................................................................ 131

Probiotics Research Laboratory (Endowed Department) .................................................................................. 132

Department of Collaborative Research in Wound Healing Science ............................................................... 134

Publication List

Publications from Juntendo University Graduate School of Medicine, 2015 [6/6] .................................................. 136

Errata .............................................................................. 168

Instructions to Authors .................................................................................. 169

Editor’s Note ........................................................................ 174

The Juntendo Medical Society

From the illustrator: This is “Hocchan”, a pet cat of P who is my blog friend, taking a nap in the breeze, with his favorite stuffed toy. I feel as if I can smell the fragrance of flowers grown in the well-kept garden. (Akiko Miyamichi)